Call for AZPHC Board of Directors Nominations

It's time for the AZPHC Annual Elections. All positions on the Board are open. They include: President, Vice-President, Regional Vice-President, Treasurer, Secretary and four Member-At-Large positions.

If you wish to run for an AZPHC office, you must submit your name (only self-nominations are accepted) and the position you wish to run for to our Election Officers, Karen and Lou Eagley, by October 15th, 2004. You can either email Karen and Lou at lushesprecious@cox.net or call them at 480.854.6764. No late nominations will be accepted. If there are any contested positions, we will have an election and details will be sent out at that time.

If you have any questions about what being on the BOD entails, please feel free to ask any of the current or past BOD members for details. Duties and election details may be found in our bylaws on the website, <http://www.parrotheads.org/about.html>.

Headbeak Speaks

Pete Ferralli

The year is coming to an end, but the fun continues. There never seems to be an end to the parties, community service events and the activities that make our club so much fun. As we look forward to the fall of the year and a close of 2004, we anxiously await the start of 2005. As we reflect on what has been and what will be, we can take some pride in the work we have done to help our community and those that are less fortunate. We have spent the better part of 2004 working with our major charity, the West Valley Child Crisis Center (WVCCC). Our Parrot Grande event helped raise $5,200 for the kids and thanks to the work of one of members, Rick Metivier, proceeds from the September Bunker to Bunker golf event were donated to the West Valley Child Crisis Center. From early reports the donation will be around $1,200. With the $1,000 we received from the Rock and Roll Marathon and these latest events, our donations to the WVCCC this year will reach over $7,200. Our efforts in some small way will make the lives of many children brighter.

We are working on our 10th Anniversary Party. We have chosen the 20th of November for the event and the location will be the San Marcos in Chandler. The hotel is giving us special rates for rooms for those who want to spend the night. We are working the final details and just as an added attraction for this once in a decade event, we have Stars on the Water as our entertainment. Keep your eyes on the website for the details.

On the 16th of October we will be supporting the Alzheimer's Memory Walk in downtown Phoenix. This event draws a good number of members and we hope to once again get some air time on channel 3. As with all of our events, we will find a local facility to relax and do what we do best. If you can't make the walk, support our club by making a donation.

This is the time of the year when we have our annual club elections. We are always looking for members interested in getting more involved in the operation of the club. Nominations for board positions will end on the 15th of October. The board needs dedicated Parrotheads to make our club a success. If you cannot make the commitment for the board, consider a position on one of our committees. A committee position is a great way to understand the operation of the club and is a good stepping stone to a board position.

As always, thanks for your support of our club functions. Without you we could not be a success.

St. Practice Day Party

Kathy Pfister

You know that old expression about someone not being smart enough to come in out of the rain? Well, now we know to whom it refers. While lightning flashed and tropical storm like rain fell, Michael Bauman, Beth Rylands, Rick Metivier and Pete Ferralli sat in the Rylands' hot tub for hours on end. The rest of us smarter, and saner, folks tried to tough it out on the patio but ended up indoors watching ASU kick Iowa butt. Despite the weather, we had a great time at the Rylands' enjoying corned beef and cabbage, Chicago beef and artery clogging cookies. I don't think we're all in St. Patrick's Day form yet but the water babies are pretty close! Thanks to Beth and Stan (and Jack) for hosting us in their home.

Financial Report for the First Half of 2004

By Dianne Deimeke, Club Beancounter

Halfway into 2004 the club is in great financial shape. As expected, we've recouped the 1st quarter deficit that we generally show each year as a result of members waiting a bit after the holidays to re-up their memberships. We have 60 new members as of June 30th, which helped contribute to our net excess of revenues over expenses of $747.

Parrot Heads Go to the Ballpark

Ginna Roviello

Not even the magical presence of a phlocking of Parrot Head baseball phans could lift the bad mojo that surrounds Randy Johnson and the Arizona Diamondbacks this year.

There we were sitting in Section 100 overlooking the Dodgers Bullpen waiting for Eric Gagne to warm up - hoping that the D-Backs would threaten or at least sneer a little at the Dodgers defense. Maybe we should have brought our concert lights to help them see the pitch? Maybe it's because we were wearing D-Backs modified Parrot Head Paraphernalia and not enough feathers or flashing lights? Is it possible that not enough pink may have caused the loss in 13 innings? Could it be? Is pink the answer? Well, yes, it is, but I digress!

It's always a phun time when we phlock, and this time was no exception. Baseball, hot dogs and Parrot Heads, can you get any thing more American than that!!!!

Randy Johnson threw an amazing 15, count 'em, 15 strikeouts. Win or lose, we witnessed an awesome outing by the Big Unit. I wonder how he'd look in a Hawaiian shirt and matching sarong?

Riddles in the Sand 2004

Kathy Ferralli

Early early on a Thursday morning in late July, six Arizona Parrot Head club members boarded a Southwest flight to Houston Texas to attend The Galveston Bay Parrot Head Club's annual Riddles in the Sand. Now, realizing these six are not normal in any way and everything they do is an adventure. This adventure started in the security line at the airport! Sandi Murray and Bob Martin start talking to the lady in line behind us, while after a few minutes of conversation this lady decides she wants to go with us, after all we are going to Houston and so is she! ONE problem here, we are going on Southwest and this lady's ticket is on America West! Don't know if she made it to Houston or not!! We are now in the boarding area waiting to board our plane, and Boob notices some lady with a SWORD getting on our flight! Well the lady got on and we still can't figure out how she got on with SWORD, she must have been the Ninja Lady!

We have finally arrived in Houston, Texas, picked up our mini van and hit the road to Galveston. About a 45-minute drive. We found our hotel and there is a WAL-MART right next door! Now we are excited, we can walk to Wal Mart! It is HOT and HUMID, I will take the dry heat any day! We have lunch at Fisherman's Wharf down at the marina, food was good, the drinks were great! It was HOT and HUMID! Galveston is a whole other world!

Finally get into our little condo, 3 bedrooms, actually 2 bedrooms and bunk beds in a walk in closet! Not too many parrot heads around yet, after all it is only Thursday, and Riddles doesn't actually start until Friday! After settling into our little condo and checking out the grounds of the hotel, doing a little shopping at Wal-Mart for necessities (beer & diet Coke), we head over to the Balinese Room for a pre-Riddles-Party with the Galveston Bay PHC. Those Texans sure are friendly pholk! Everyone there gave us the warmest welcome. You would think that we were "celebrities"! Andy & the Dreamsicles were playing good ole rock and roll from the 50's and 60's and a little Buffett. The boys did a "toast on the Gulf" they threw their beer mugs in the Gulf! We ordered food and an hour later we find out the KITCHEN IS CLOSED! On the way home to our little condo, we stopped at IHOP and had breakfast!

Friday morning was HOT and HUMID, and there were sharks in the water. Pete was at the pool before it opened! We decided to go shopping in downtown Galveston! The boys decided to buy sarongs for the Texas men! Of course with Galveston being a beach town, there was a lot of flamingo things to buy, which we did! And it was HOT & HUMID! We had lunch at a little restaurant called Bistro LaCroy! Well Tommie LaCroy is now our best friend! He was impressed with our concert light and was trying to figure out how to make them! What a character! Shopped a little more, and then headed back to our little condo to get ready for the party Friday nite! Now there are parrot heads everywhere! And I must say those Texas parrot heads are really friendly! The Friday nite party was a great nite. Hanna's Reef was playing. Once again we were welcomed over and over and over again by all those Texas parrot heads. I think they were glad we came! We were having a good time, the Arizona gals were doing their normal dances, the Arizona boys were wrestling with a huge Corona Bottle, and all those Texas pholk were doing the Texas 2-step to every song! I swear these people learn to 2-step before they learn to walk! Martin was trying to talk the Texas men into wearing sarongs on Saturday nite because the Arizona boys were! T & A now stands for Texas and Arizona!

Saturday morning found us shopping again at Wal-Mart, by noon the pool party is going strong, a great relaxing day by the pool listening to Sunny Jim. Then the pirate ship building contest was about to begin! Have you ever seen a pirate ship made out of funoodles and duck tape? Well let me tell you, I have never seen a pirate ship like that! It was huge and it floated and it had people in it, and it floated! Then there was a pirate ship made out of the Corona Bottle that the boys were wrestling with on Friday nite. One of the Texas club borrowed it to make a ship, it floated, but not for very long, but it got us dinner that nite. We were invited to dinner with the Central Texas club, they were cooking up Mexican food and wanted to share with us, so we brought the beer! What a great time. Those Texas pholk are so friendly! Saturday nite was another big party in the ballroom with Kelly McGuire and his band. What a great entertainer, and he wants to come to Arizona to entertain us! One of the highlights that nite was the "pink" picture. (continued...)

(...continued) Everyone wore pink and we had a group picture taken! This was in support of Connie Gray who is running in the MOTM contest to be Jimmy Buffett's vice president of Margaritaville! Connie chose pink in support of Breast Cancer Awareness! What a great cause. The Arizona club presented the Galveston Bay club a "Bambooski" made from a boogie board! It worked fine and the Galveston Bay club loved it!

Sunday morning found us packing up early and doing a little shopping before making our last stop at The Bayou Bar for our final good-byes. We had breakfast at Bistro LaCroy's again and Tommie shared some of his private stock of "shine" with us! Like I said Tommie LaCroy is our new best friend. We finally get to the Bayou Bar where Kelly Brown and the Bad Monkeys are playing. We walk in to a standing ovation from those Texas Pholk! I guess they think we are the party! We closed out the party dancing in a circle with our new Texas friends to "will the circle be unbroken" and other gospel songs! We felt like we were at a "Revival"! The entire weekend was great, we were made to feel right at home by everyone there. Some little ole man bought us ladies drinks after we performed "5 O'Clock Somewhere", he thought we were "real" entertainers! He had NO idea what a Parrot Head was, but he liked our dancing, so we graciously accepted his drinks and continued to dance!

If you are looking for a good time, a change of scenery and getting out of the desert in July head down to Galveston Bay for Riddles in the Sand 2005. You will not be disappointed!

Parrot Grande – 2004

Kathy Pfister

We managed to pull it off again! This year there were no last minute venue changes, thank goodness, but still some drama, and lots and lots of phun.

It don't rain in Arizona – or so we think until it does at a most inconvenient time like Friday night at PG. We moved the whole shebang indoors at management's request...just as the rain finished up, of course. Stars on the Water were awesome and they guys were good sports to wear their new "Flamingo-Wear". Jerry did a good job of keeping Kathy Ferralli away from the microphone so all was well.

The Golf God, for some crazy reason, decided to go on vacation until the night before PG but still managed to pull off his new sign idea, conducted the Midnight Putting Contest (does anyone else see a pattern with O'Malley associates winning that trophy?) and put on another great tournament (I think his wife helped him a bit or maybe it was a lot). I can foresee people saving up pictures and ideas for next year's signs – that was just too funny! My foursome didn't cheat this year – and didn't win anything so clearly we'll be back to our old ways next year.

Saturday afternoon was pool time with Mark Mulligan and John Milner giving us some tunes. There was lots of dancing (perhaps this is where Lou got worn out?) and chatting and perhaps a few adult beverages were consumed with our cheeseburgers.

Saturday night was music with The Fiesta Brothers – I think we were all a bit over the video camera thing. There was some great conga line action going on, though, and lots more dancing. I hung out with the bad kids (you know, the smokers, especially Louie) and really, really wanted to go to bed, but, NO, Kathy O'Malley dragged me up to their party suite (which they won in the raffle) for a midnight bash. We had a big crowd up there and Chef Todd brought us meat and cheese trays to munch on – we love Chef Todd! Jon Edwards was a hit in his purloined foam hat – he sure did look proud in that! Norene snuck away to bed and I should have done the same but then Kathy O. guilted me into going to the hot tub (have you picked up the fact that I am just an innocent victim in all of these stories?). I think it's safe to say that Parrot Heads and drunken softball players aren't a good mix, especially if the latter have their kids up at 2 AM. I finally made my break after "just one more beer" and headed off to bed.

Sunday morning came too early. Most folks appeared to make it on time to the breakfast. Tamyra announced the Balcony Awards (again, with the O'Malley winning thing). She added a new prize this year called the Captain's Cup for a balcony that the judges really liked but that didn't fit a category. The winner was Keith Richard and we were all a little suspicious that neither he, nor Judge Norene, was around. Kinda makes you go hmmm. Finally, there was the packing up and saying good-bye. Some of us did pool time with the California pholks but by 5:30 PM, I was home in my little bed taking a 12-hour nap. I'd say I'm getting too old for these kinds of weekends but we all know that I'm not old so that can't be true!

Observed and Overheard at Parrot Grande – 2004

Mostly compiled by Carol Metivier

- Lou, the new Stage Ho.
- Gumbo Pimp Daddy Lou.
- That reminds me of a dinner story.
- Hope someone gets a picture of that for next year's golf signs.
- Parrot head events are like a family reunion without the fights.
- You won't find another group like parrot heads.
- Sam, don't forget your trophy...hmmm I see it meant a lot to you.
- We decided we need to get a new bed.
- What the hell was that (spoken after someone teed off).
- Michael got hurt in the conga line.
- Presidential Suite Party $100, oversize foam cowboy hat $20, your friend thinking he looks good in that hat, priceless
- Bubba kegs, parrot heads favorite libation transportation container.
- Parrot head ranking system: The Golf God outranks the priest.
- I left peacefully on my own.
- They are buying votes with mardi gras beads.
- He brought power tools? Thank you to the one who had the power tools going at 7am this morning.
- My blinkies were flashing so bright, I thought the police were flagging me down.
- Spoken to a male attendee complaining of body aches after a late night of dancing: Your body shouldn't do any unnatural acts.
- No pink flamingo inflatable is safe tonight. (Spoken as one was air guitared on stage)
- He doesn't remember doing that? Well, it WAS his first Parrot Grande.
- You're kidding. We won third place in the golf tournament? We didn't even cheat.
- Treetop Flyer. Don't you mean Treetop Liar?
- He's so cute when he pouts.

September 24th and 25th - 2 days, 3 events, no sleep!

Kathy Pfister

What a crazy, busy weekend it was on Sep. 24th and 25th! Friday night found us at the Cave Creek Coffee Company enjoying the sounds and stage act of the Trailer Park Troubadours. There's no doubt in my mind that they remembered us from their last Phoenix appearance. The front row was filled with reminders – Flamingo Queens and Bubbas, complete with bad teeth, filled the seats. Some of us quieter folks sat more towards the back but everyone had a great time. I think my favorite moment was when Antsy took away two of those freaking whistles that drive me crazy – go, Antsy! Tina Davis was smashing in her Roadkill Overcoat and Antsy said he's never seen one with a flamingo in it. For more on the Troubs, check out their website, www.unhitched.com. Many of us followed up the show by hitting the Buffalo Chip and Harold's Saloons. It turned into quite the late night...

Thank goodness, we didn't have to golf until 1 PM the next day. Saturday afternoon found some of us at the Bunker to Bunker Golf Tournament at Camelback Country Club. This month's event was for the West Valley Child Crisis Center. We had a bunch of volunteers and quite a few golfers. The total raised for WVCCC was $1,200, which is way cool! The highlight, or perhaps it should be described as the lowlight, occurred when Beth Rylands was talking while she was driving (I know, it's hard to picture) and dumped Eric "Spidey" Parker off the back of the golf cart. He seemed unscathed but, and this is the really sad part, he couldn't save his beer. Clearly, she's a menace. The Lady Parrot Heads presented official "Best Butt Contest" certificates and the winning team was quite proud although one member did blush (in a very cute way but, of course, he's married so I didn't really pay much attention).

We ended the evening (with most of us stinky from lack of showers after golf) at O'Brien's for their beach party and Ray Cody show. A heated Trivia game broke out and, once again, it became a very, very late night. Fortunately, I made it up in time for football on Sunday to see my rise to the top of the Yahoo Group. Sorry, had to slip that in as I'm sure I won't be in first place for long. ☺

Birthday wishes to...

Parrots in the Pines

Kathy Pfister

A few forest fires weren't enough to keep us from Christopher Creek for the second annual Parrot in the Pines festivities in July. The early birds had to detour a bit but it was worth the trip. As soon as we pulled into the Greyhackle Lodge, we discovered we were sharing it with two rather large elk. There they were, just munching grass and seemingly unafraid of us. I can't say I felt the same way about them – those are some big animals!

As soon as most of the Greyhackle gang arrived, we headed off to the Landmark for Friday night vittles and met up with the folks staying at Christopher Creek Lodge. Let's just say, those in the Christopher Creek Cabins were not all that enthusiastic about their lodgings. Just ask Roger about his 'stick' for a shower curtain! Mental note, make your reservation early next year.

Saturday morning found us playing some heated games of Eucher and other cards before we headed back to the Landmark for Ray Cody followed by Mark Mulligan. We danced (oh, how we danced!), sang along and enjoyed adult beverages. And, we sold Blinkies like they were going out of style. Roger had them lining up and begging us to take their money.

After Mark finished, he promised to join us back at Greyhackle. We've heard this story before. Some of us brave souls stayed up as late as we could until the tequila wore us down (I'm not sure how many empty tequila bottles were on the ground the next morning but the way my head felt, I'm sure it was a lot!). Mark finally showed up after most of the group was crashed but the hardest of us stayed up to party with him some more. The sacrifices we make for our friends, we should be sainted.

Hope you can make it next year. It was a good time, despite (or maybe because of?) the tequila!

Photographic Evidence...

Cathy, Kathy, Paula and Tammy posing with some of the great golf signs.

Doug presents Kathy Ferralli with a thank you gift for her years of service on the BOD.

This picture just cracks me up!

Looks like Mary, Dianne and Craig are just trying to hold Doug up at this point.

Russ seems OK with the fact that Tamyra has apparently joined the Mickey Mouse Club.

OK, this is Rosanne picking up her ball where it hit our cart on a completely different hole. Can you say "Menace"? Can she say "Fore"?

This is what happens when Grr-Animals regurgitate.

Tammy and Darcy model their pencil thin mustaches. Hope that wasn't permanent ink.

This is what you have to do when you don't hit past the Ladies' Tee. It's a rule dating back to St. Andrews, really.

"I am woman, hear me roar. I can't close the deal but I'm too hard to ignore."

Who would have guessed that these two would actually stay out of trouble the whole weekend?

Mark Mulligan providing the poolside entertainment.

John Milner spelled Mark and sang some of his 'naughty' tunes.

Once you go pink...

This year's cheating golf team...so I've heard from a reliable source married to one of them.

Pete, Carol, Brian and Kate almost look like a real golf team. What were they doing in a Parrot Head Tourney?
